Neuropsychologists from the Division of Child & Adolescent Psychiatry at the Columbia University Medical Center specialize in evaluating children and adolescents of all ages who are struggling at home or at school. We help to clarify diagnostic questions, including learning, attention, developmental, and/or social difficulties, as well as identify the types of support needed.

Our neuropsychologists work with you to address the needs of your child and to put your child's education on the right track.

Evaluations are provided on a fee-for-service basis.
